

Luxembourg

Finding a will in Luxembourg

~ Legal professionals, some questions/answers to assist you ~

→ When the existence of a will has been established, who has to be contacted to obtain information about its content?

Information on the content of the will is sent by the notary responsible for settling the succession. This can be either the notary holding the will or a different notary, whose contact details can be provided by the notary holding the will. The latter can be located by consulting the Luxembourg Register of Wills, in particular via the European Network of Registers of Wills (ENRW).

→ Who is entitled to receive the information?

The information contained in the will, and if necessary a copy of the will itself, provided that the relevant legal requirements are met, can be sent to public authorities or legal professionals responsible for settling the succession, wherever they are located.

.....
These questions and answers constitute a source of general information, up to date as of 1st January 2022. If you have a specific problem, please contact a notary. This practical guide was prepared by ARERT in collaboration with the European Commission and the Notaries of Europe.

Luxembourg

→ Is there a particular procedure to be followed? If so, which one?

For the information contained in the will, and/or a copy of the will itself, to be communicated, the notary responsible for settling the succession must have received a certified copy of the will from the notary holding it or, if appropriate, from the President of the Court (“tribunal d’arrondissement”) in the district where the succession was opened.

→ By what means can the information be sent?

The information contained in the will and/or a copy of the will itself are sent by post or electronically.

Important

These questions and answers constitute a source of general information, up to date as of 1st January 2022. If you have a specific problem, please contact a notary. This practical guide was prepared by ARERT in collaboration with the European Commission and the Notaries of Europe.